

Former Dawson Hotel Man Given 20 Months in Prison For Violation of Woner Act

Louis Lorenzo Also Is Ordered to Pay Fine of $1,500 by Judge Reppert.

A FLAGRANT VIOLATOR

Court Overlooks Fact That He Did Not Appear for Trial But Calls Attention to Infamy With Friend's Wife; John McGardie Sentenced.

The severest prison sentence yet imposed by Fayette county Judge E. H. Reppert for violation of the Woner Act was meted out today to Louis Lorenzo, former proprietor of the Dawson Hotel at Dawson. On Lorenzo's plea of guilty, the court fined him $1,500 and ordered him committed to the Allegheny County Workhouse for a period of 20 months, the prison sentence to be suspended at the end of 10 months if fine and costs have been paid.

Lorenzo was called for trial at the September term of court but failed to appear. Counsel said blame for this did not attach to the defendant because only two hours' notice of the time of the trial had been given counsel.

Assistant District Attorney Davis W. Henderson, in charge of liquor case prosecutions, said Lorenzo was reputed to be one of the most flagrant violators of the law in his section of the county.

In imposing sentence, Judge Reppert said he would disregard the fact that he had not appeared for trial but recalled the fact that he had "debauched his friend's wife" and alienated her affections.

John McGardie, Point Marion business man and former member of the borough council, was fined $1,000 and given six months to jail, with provision for suspension of the jail sentence at the expiration of three months, provided fine and costs are paid. McGardie was arrested for the illegal transportation of 200 cases of whisky. He claimed the liquor was shipped to Dickinson City, Pa., and that he had a permit. The case involved persons high in the revenue service, it being charged that the permit was forged.

Divorces were granted in the following cases:
Madeline Shaffer, Point Marion, against Robert Shaffer, orthodontist.
Jessie Coeli, Uniontown, against Harry Coeli, dentist.

Charles E. Bishop, Point Marion, against Nellie Bishop, adultery.
About 25 defendants in liquor cases were to be sentenced this afternoon.

Widow of Slain Rector Appears At Courthouse

By Associated Press.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 28.—Dramatic events played so rapidly today in the investigation of the Somerset county grand jury of the Hall-Mills murder case.

First, Mrs. Francis Hall, widow of Rev. Hall, murdered with Mrs. Eleanor Mills, appeared unexpectedly at the courthouse with her lawyer for the apparent purpose of asking the grand jury to hear her story.

Second, Mrs. Jane Gibson, pig raiser, who claims to have witnessed the double slaying, passed the widow without noticing her on her way from the prosecutor's office to the grand jury room. She was understood to be the state's witness and the last in the grand jury proceedings, indicating that the jury might this afternoon begin deliberating on indictments.

Third, a new witness said to corroborate the story of Mrs. Gibson's story, appeared at the last last minute in Charles A.rough, a Somerville dairy driver.

The story which Arough is understood to have told the grand jury is that on the night of the murder he was driving from New Brunswick to Bound Brook when at 12:10 A. M. he noticed a sedan standing near DeRusey's lane in the vicinity of the Phillips farm where the shooting occurred. With the aid of his light he was able to see that the car said to resemble one belonging to the woman in gray whom Mrs. Gibson claims to have seen about this time bending over the bodies was empty.

Fourth, a new witness said to corroborate the story of Mrs. Gibson's story, appeared at the last last minute in Charles A.rough, a Somerville dairy driver.

According to the district attorney, the reason for sending the police was that Mrs. Henry Brinkley, sister-in-law of the victim, had spread reports which damaged her reputation.

Bisel Drug Forced From Mc-
Croy Building by Scenic,
Photographer.

NEW CONCERN COMING?

The Bisel Drug Company, which was forced to move from its location on the corner of North Pittsburgh and Apple streets because of the remodeling of the Citizen National Bank Building, has been forced from the McCroy Five & Ten Cent Store. The upstairs room, used only by the drug store for a few weeks, will be taken over by L. Scenic, proprietor of the New York Studio.

The studio is now located on the third floor of the building on the opposite corner of North Pittsburgh and Apple streets from the bank, purchased some months ago by the Zimmerman-Wild Furniture Company. The new owners have given all tenants notice to vacate by February 1 as work of remodeling the structure for the use of the furniture company will begin then.

The Bisel Drug Company will locate in West Crawford avenue, in what is now the office of the Smith House. The office and lounge room will be moved to the second floor, with entrance through a hall. Remodeling of the floor space for the drug store will begin soon.

The Zimmerman-Wild Company expects to complete alterations on its new building in about 45 days. A new front will be put in and the entire building remodeled so that all floor space can be converted to the use of the business.

There has been no announcement of any occupant for the space now used by the Zimmerman-Wild Company in the Wallace building in West Crawford avenue. It is said no tenant has yet been secured, although there have been rumors of the firm of Frank & Seder of Pittsburg occupying it.

Policeman and Auto Bandit Are Killed in Battle

By Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Two men are dead—a Columbus policeman and an unidentified automobile bandit—as the result of the attempt of two policemen to arrest four men this morning, said to have been driving an automobile stolen in Cleveland last night.

Patrolman Granunson, P. Koehler died in a hospital and a few minutes later reports received at police headquarters said a large car answering the description of the one stolen in Cleveland and in which the bandits were seen in Columbus had been located near West Jefferson with the body of a man who had been shot to death lying in the rear seat. Corporal Roscoe C. Tridelle is in a hospital suffering from a wound in the left jaw.

The two Columbus policemen were on the lookout for the bandit car headquarters here having been notified of the theft last night. Hitting the car the officers searched the four men and took two revolvers. Koehler went to a nearby call box to summon a patrol wagon while Tridelle guarded the prisoners. After Koehler had summoned the patrol one of the bandits opened fire with a pistol which apparently had been hidden in the car.

Koehler, hit by four bullets, fell to the street. Tridelle, wounded in the jaw, emptied his pistol and the two which had been taken from the thugs at the fleeing car.

On the body of the dead bandit found in an abandoned automobile of West Jefferson was found a bank book bearing the name of Peter Long, Erie, Pa. The man was described as being between 45 and 50 years of age, sandy-haired and heavy set.

GREEKS EXECUTE HIGH OFFICIALS, DESPITE WARNING

Break Between Athens Govern-

Probable as Result.

BLAMED FOR TURK DRIVE

By Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Greek former ministers condemned to death by the military court in Athens have been executed, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens this afternoon.

It was stated in official circles this afternoon that the immediate withdrawal of the British minister in Athens will result from the executions.

ATHENS, Nov. 28.—All but two of the former cabinet officers and army officials accused of high treason in connection with the Greek debacle in Asia Minor have been sentenced to death by the military court that heard the charges. A sentence of life imprisonment and degradation was imposed on Admiral Goudas and General Stratis.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—There is the strongest possibility that Great Britain will break diplomatic relations with Greece if the death sentences imposed on former cabinet officers are carried out, was stated today.

It was pointed out that the sentences given the former Greek ministers have not yet been carried out and that there still was hope that the Greeks would not take such extreme action.

France Planning For Direct Action Against Germany

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—A plan for direct action by France as a solution of the reparations question was submitted to the full cabinet meeting in the Elysee Palace with President Millerand presiding.

The plan provides for seizure of the state coal mines and collection of the export taxes in the Ruhr district, together with absolute control of that section of the Rhineland now occupied by the French military.

Members of the cabinet refused to discuss the action taken; it is generally believed the plan was approved without opposition as it was drawn up yesterday at a meeting in which the foremost military and civil authorities participated, including President Millerand, Premier Poincare, Marshal Poch and the ministers of finance, war and liberated regions.

The Department of Fisheries has received the supplies and distribution to county treasurers, who will be the issuing authorities, will be started early in December. ## SUPERINTENDENT OF CONSTRUCTION ON BRIDGE ARRESTED

A. J. Bruce Required to Put Up $100
Forfeit for Alleged Disorderly Conduct.

When A. J. Bruce, who is in charge of the work of reconstruction of the Crawford avenue bridge, grew sarcastic over the suggestion of Assistant Chief of Police P. M. Ruhl yesterday afternoon that he abate the flow of steam from the exhaust of a compressor on the bridge which enveloped a section of the bridge and was a menace to traffic, the officer hustled him to the police station where he was required to put up a forfeit of $100 for a hearing Wednesday on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Just before the incident there was a collision in the vapor cloud between the 115 West Penn car and an automobile owned by Joe Sernacko of Latrobe and occupied by the owner and a friend in which the automobile was wrecked. The officer's attention was also drawn to children dashing through the clouds and to their danger.

When Ruhl asked that something be done with the steam, the officer said Bruce grew abusive and accused the "city" of "trying to run" the affairs of the construction company.

Chief of Police Peter M. Murphy declared the city should make compulsory the installation of devices for condensing steam where it becomes a nuisance to the public. In this instance, he said, the placing of a sack over the exhaust pipe would have done the work.

STATE WITHIN ITS RIGHTS IN TAXING ANTHRACITE COAL

Says United States Supreme Court on Appeal From Lower Courts.

IS MONOPOLY IN STATE

Not a Commodity in Interstate Commerce, Hence a Proper Subject of Taxation; Will Yield State $6,000,000 Annually and Increase Prices.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Ruling that anthracite coal, being a monopoly in Pennsylvania, is not a commodity in interstate commerce, the imposition of a tax by the state Legislature is, therefore, not a violation of the commerce clause of the Constitution, the decision of the United States Supreme Court, confirms the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and thereby disposes of an issue which has been bitterly contested by the producers of anthracite coal since the first tax law was passed in 1913 and later declared unconstitutional.

Sustaining the constitutionality of the measure will mean that the revenue of the state of Pennsylvania will be increased approximately $6,000,000 for the 18 months intervening since the law became effective, and about $6,000,000 annually hereafter. The tax is one and one-half per cent on the value of anthracite when prepared for shipment to market, hence will mean that higher prices will have to be paid by consumers.

The case was tried under the title of Roland C. Heister, plaintiff in error, versus the Thomas Colliery Company, and others; Samuel L. Lewis, auditor-general of the state, and others.

In appealing the case to the Supreme Court, the plaintiffs sought to have the lower courts reversed and state officials restrained from collecting the tax.

The plaintiffs claimed the tax was unconstitutional, in that it violated the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution by taxing an article of interstate commerce, and that the Legislature could not properly tax anthracite without likewise taxing bituminous.

After reviewing the history of the legislation and the litigation in the Pennsylvania courts Justice McKenna, in his opinion, said:

"The bill in the case, so far as we are concerned with it, assails the act of 1921 as offensive to the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States in that it denies to the Thomas Colliery Company and other owners and operators of anthracite mines equal protection of the laws because it taxes such owners and anthracite coal, and does not tax the owners of bituminous mines and bituminous coals. The ultimate foundation of the contention is that anthracite coal and bituminous coal are fuels and necessarily, therefore, must be associated in the same class for taxation in this regard or in diminution of whatever other differences may exist between them in composition qualities or uses, and that not to associate them is arbitrary and unreasonable, having the consequences of inequality and illegality, and therefore, within the ban of the Constitution of the United States. The contention, therefore, concentrates attention upon the consideration of what resemblances or differences in objects justify their inclusion in or their exclusion from a particular class.

"There is a distinct difference between anthracite and bituminous coal, and the State of Pennsylvania was within its rights in taxing anthracite and not bituminous coal."

Paris Hat Modes

Chapeaux Reveal Surprises and Originalities That Thrill.

"Shaved Rooster" and "Burned Peacock" Among the New Materials Used by Milliners.

Hats are always the loveliest of all Parisian creations. The modistes have the art of chapeau making developed to the last degree, and whatever they do is bound to be artistic as well as beautiful and suited in every way to the feminine mode of thinking and behaving. It is hard to pick one hatmaker from another as being supreme in her art. The things they turn out are all so extraordinarily lovely. But a study of the hats and toques and turbans which come from the hands of each of them reveals surprise and originalities which are destined to thrill the heart of any woman bent upon dressing in the height of the season's mode.

Because there are so many high fur collars, Jane Blanchot makes all of her hats slightly narrower in the brim at back. She is making an equal proportion of large roll-rim hats and small toques, giving preference to neither one nor the other.

Velvet and panne velvet in all of the various gradations of the leather shades are used for her hats. And the scale of green is run in many smart models. She uses, with great originality, feathers so that they simulate the appearance of fur, giving in this way the smart look of a fur trimming in much less expensive medium. Charmingly she uses gray ostrich so that it appears as though it were nothing less than the luxurious chinchilla. Little ribbons exquisitely curled represent the snail of astrakhan. A large hat of gray panne velvet is decorated with huge circles of lace, leaving the sides of the crown transparent.

Deer Season in State Will Open Friday, December 1

Special to The Courier. HARRISBURG, Nov. 28.—More deer had been probably will be shot by hunters in Pennsylvania during the coming season than in years, in the opinion of Seth Gordon, secretary of the State Game Commission. With normal weather conditions, Secretary Gordon said 7,000 deer and 500 bear probably will be killed as compared with 4,800 deer and 500 bear last year. The deer seasons opens next Friday, December 1, and continues to December 15. The bear season opened November 1 and ends on the same day as the deer season. Game conservation methods were given credit for the increase in big game. Twenty years ago, Secretary Gordon said, the season's kill of deer was between 300 and 500. A large hunting party might spend a week with dogs without seeing a deer. Game laws, their enforcement and observation, forest protection and establishment of game refuge have promoted increase of the various species and today, the secretary added, the hunters might go over the same territory without dogs and see from 10 to 75 deer.

Under present game laws Secretary Gordon said the improvement should continue until the annual kill of deer reaches 10,000.

Because there are so many high fur collars, Jane Blanchot makes all of her hats slightly narrower in the brim at back. She is making an equal proportion of large roll-rim hats and small toques, giving preference to neither one nor the other.

Velvet and panne velvet in all of the various gradations of the leather shades are used for her hats. And the scale of green is run in many smart models. She uses, with great originality, feathers so that they simulate the appearance of fur, giving in this way the smart look of a fur trimming in much less expensive medium. Charmingly she uses gray ostrich so that it appears as though it were nothing less than the luxurious chinchilla. Little ribbons exquisitely curled represent the snail of astrakhan. A large hat of gray panne velvet is decorated with huge circles of lace, leaving the sides of the crown transparent.

TURKS HOLD TOMB OF EVE

Legend Tells Us That Mother of the Human Race Must Have Been of Generous Proportions.

Eve, the mother of the human race, is buried, according to a very old legend, at a spot about a mile north of Jeddah in Arabia.

Her reputed tomb is of enormous length, being nearly four hundred feet long by ten broad. It is now in the possession of the Mohammedans, who do not permit any Christians to enter it.

The human race must have altered very much since the world was created, for, according to tradition, Eve was reputed to be 118 feet high.

What a good thing for Adam there were no dressmakers' bills in those old days, or he would have found clothing his spouse a costly matter.

Adam is said to be buried in Ceylon, but Eve spent the last years of her life at Jeddah. At Mecca there is a very old temple, which is supposed to have been built by Adam himself.—London Answers.

Orange Blossoms for the Bride.
The ancient mandarin of China, the swarthy queens of the Nile, the dery Saracens, and romantic French, all knew and cherished the little white flowers of the orange tree, and with them decked out their brides thousands of years ago, says a complimentary brochure issued by a Detroit jewelry manufacturing concern.

In China, the orange has, from time immemorial, been an emblem of good luck, and is freely used to present to friends and guests. The orange is said to have been first brought by the Portuguese from China in 1547, nevertheless this fruit is supposed to have been the golden apple which grew in the garden of Hesperides. The golden apple was presented to the Queen of Heaven upon her marriage with Jupiter.

In Crete, bride and bridegroom, according to Folklore, are sprinkled with orange flower water, and in Sardinia oranges are hung upon the horns of the oxen that draw the nuptial carriages.

Doors That Control Clocks.
The latest trouble-saving device is a clock that needs no winding. It winds itself automatically.

This invention stands to the credit of a firm in Hamburg. The clock is placed above a door, and the winding apparatus is connected with the door by means of a Bowden wire cable. Every time the door is opened, or shut the wire pulls a small lever, which moves the winder of the clock.

A special device prevents the clock from being overwound, and it is claimed that if the door is opened only three times a day the clock will receive enough winding to prevent it from stopping.

With this arrangement it is quite possible, barring accidents, for a clock to go for centuries without being touched.

Old Indian Wedding Custom.

Among the Gaves of India, instead of the bride pleading unwillingness to marry, the groom plays the role of the one who does not wish to wed, and who is forced into submission.

The Gaves woman calls at the house of the man of her choice, and "pops the question" to his mother. The mother then negotiates with the father and her son, telling them what she would be member of the family offers in pigs and beer for a husband.

Great grief is shown by the parents of the groom on the wedding day. Sometimes their grief exhibits itself in such loud bursts of sorrow that the Gaves bride must be taken to be less boisterous by offering more beer and pigs. If they play their cards well the wedding day of their son brings them much of value.

Rest.

People's ideas of rest differ very considerably; what is rest to one man may be hard work to another. The great thing is to have a change of occupation to get away from one's ordinary tasks, whether these be golf or business, and to relax the mind in whatever way may be most grateful.

Many will find this relaxation in religion or in games. Wiser people will find it in both. But the wisest of all are those who find it in the gentler exercises alike of the spirit and of the muscle, such as neither tyrannize over nor distract their neighbors.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Connellville People Know How to Save It.

Many Connellville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting their kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Ask your neighbor! Here is a Connellville citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. John Morrison, 199 West Morton avenue, says: "Within the past three years I used Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of backache and other symptoms of kidney disorder. I was bothered a great deal with pains across my kidneys and lameness and soreness through them. In the morning my back was always stiff and my kidneys annoyed me by acting irregularly."

I was troubled the way for some time when a neighbor recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me. Two boxes from Keagy's Drug Store entirely rid me of the trouble and I have never had a return of it." 60c at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—advertisement.

EDUCATION WEEK.

There are so many weeks of the year which are devoted to special efforts of some kind, or in the interest of this or that activity, that there is danger the people will lose interest in this method of attracting public attention to and cooperation in movements that are really worthwhile.

Thus it may happen that too little importance will be attached to the week of December 2-3, which has been set aside for special observance as American Education Week. The broad purpose being to emphasize American ideas and ideals in education, the effort should make such an appeal to every loyal citizen and friend of education and good government that they will take more than a casual interest in this means of stressing the broadest aspects of education as the fundamental thing in American life.

"The strength and security of the nation," says President Harding in his proclamation setting aside next week as American Education Week, "will always rest in the intelligent body of its people. Our education should implant conceptions of public duty and private obligation broad enough to envisage the problems of a greatly distraught world. More than anything else, men and women need the capacity to see with clear eye and to contemplate with open, unprejudiced mind, the issues of these times. Only through a properly motivated and generously inspired process of education can this be accomplished."

In order to give the occasion the importance it demands it is recommended by the President that civic, business and patriotic organizations and religious bodies cooperate in carrying out the program, and particularly that "parents enlist themselves in behalf of a closer understanding between the school and the home, with the purpose of mutual helpfulness."

The object should be to present the educational needs of America to the people who support the schools. Teachers and directors meet at regular intervals to discuss the technical phases of school management, but the public does not receive from such gatherings the kind of information needed to make plain how or where improvements can be made to better adapt the schools to the increasingly complex requirements of our citizenship.

One of these needs is for more young men and women to actively identify themselves with the schools. "It will be greatly worth the effort," President Harding observes, "if, as an incident to the observance of Education Week, we can impress this thought upon the young manhood and womanhood of the Nation and redirect their interest and patriotic zeal to the idea of making a proper contribution to educational work. It is regrettable that so few young men and women, equipped for such service, are nowadays disposed to give their time and talents to teaching. Education needs their youth, eagerness, zeal and enthusiasm. There is no school of discipline more effective than that in which the teacher goes to school. We could do no greater service than by convincing those young men and women who have enjoyed educational opportunities, that they owe a reasonable share of their time and energies to teaching."

Upon those who do not take up the work of teaching rests the very responsibility to use their education to aid in welding our people into one great American citizenry with American ideals and purposes in common. "Where the state," said Theodore Roosevelt, "has bestowed education the man who accepts it must be content to accept it merely as a charity unless he returns it to the state in full in the shape of good citizenship."

Making that citizenship better is the prime purpose of Education Week, hence it should enlist the interest of every person who believes in education for service to humanity and as an agency for the perpetuation of the things upon which the greatness of our nation depends.

Prohibition is not as near a failure as some of the hypocritical partisans of the law wish it will become and as they are striving to make it.

CROSSED OREGON TRAIL
70 YEARS AGO IN OX-CART

Seventy years ago Ezra Mosker crossed the Oregon trail in an ox-cart. He is now ninety-two years old. Recently he called at the White House to urge the building of a national highway over this same trail from St. Louis to Olympia, Wash. A bill providing for the construction of this highway has been introduced in the senate by Senator Jones of Washington.

"The French Tiger" is certainly accomplishing his purpose of "inviting discussion," and more. His remarks are inciting some of his critics to the use of vigorous and explosive language which in some quarters, might pass for cussing.

Evidently the weatherman thinks the time has come to schedule "Tend the Heater Week," as a variation in the "week" program.

To Bar Freak Sentences

Pittsburg Dispatch

The action of a Detroit traffic judge in sentencing reckless drivers to visit the hospitals and the morgue to see the results of such carelessness strikes a popular cord, but aside from the doubt whether drunken and reckless drivers have more humanity than they have intelligence, the freak sentence usually does more harm than good by the example of the court charged with execution of the law stopping outside the law.

So prevalent has this practice become that the American Bar Association has formed a committee to draft a code of judicial ethics, dealing with the matter. A ban will be placed on such freak decisions as sentencing a man to get married to mow his lawn, join the navy, kiss his wife, attend church or sleep in the stable, proper and even admirable as some of them may be but certainly not authorized by the statutes the courts are empowered to execute.

The effect is to bring the law into disrepute. Even as a theory of making the punishment fit the crime it is insufficiently severe, but that in so many cases the wrong-doer is not apprehended or managed to wriggle out of the meshes of the law. Steady, inevitable punishment is the one deterrent. The occasional risk of undergoing a freak sentence need alarm no offender; the belief that arrest, or punishment may be avoided is the fatal flaw. That no guilty person can escape is the model to be sought, not bizarre penalties.

THE STORM.

Winter's hammering at the door, banging at the window pane Seeking to get in at us but it howls and bays in vain. Here she leaps upon the hearth blaze and chuckles gleefully. It's a stormy night outside but we're safe as safe can be.

Out of doors the tree tops moan and a dirge the wires sing. Now and then a shutter bangs like a bruised and beaten thing. But indoors the children play all unmindful of the storm. Here we have no cause to dread, here are happy hearts and warm.

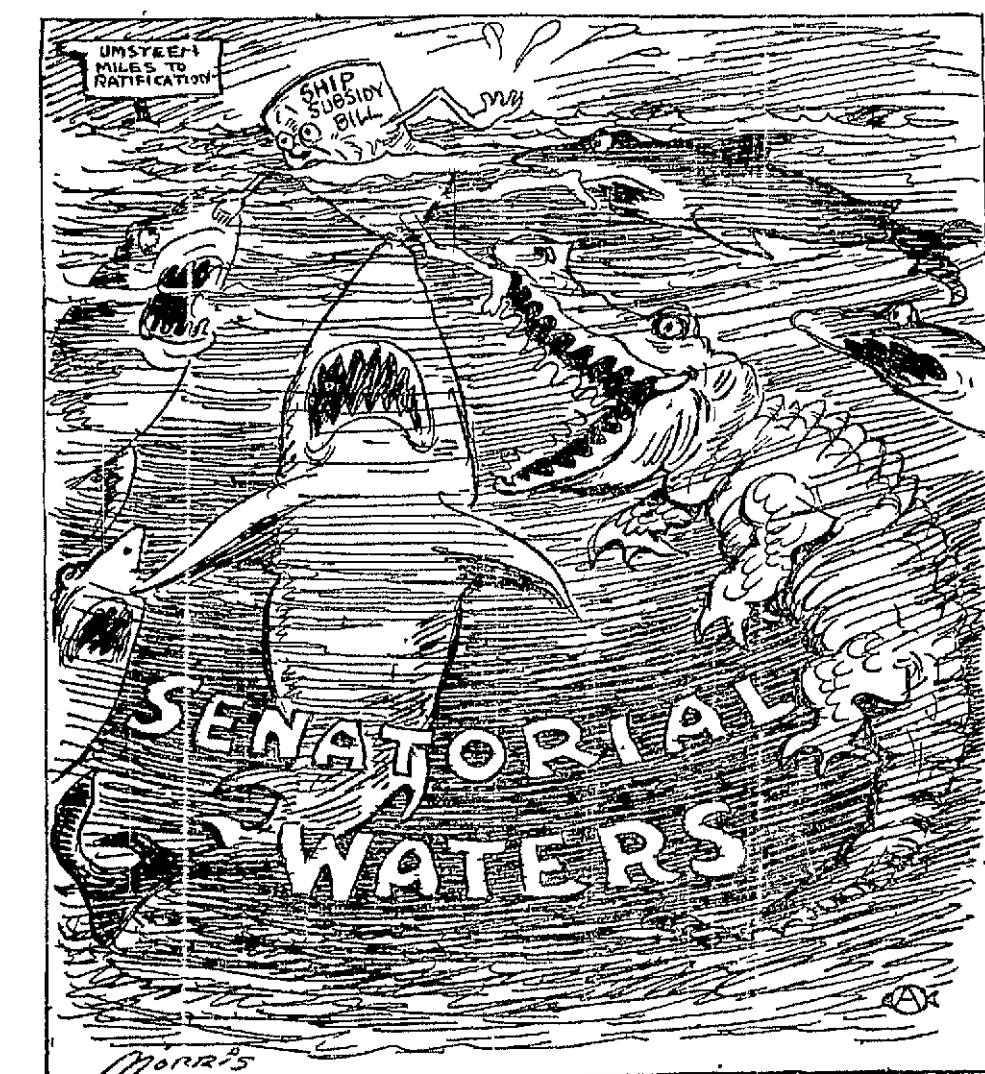

So before the fire I sit, thinking as the storm goes by. Filled with bitterness the world but contented have am I. Now the North wind howls along, and the snow is drifting deep. But serene the house remains by the blazing fire I keep.

So our faith is like the fire glowing brightly in the grate. Keeping warm the heart inside when descend the storms of fate. Bitterly the winds may blow round the place where we abide, But our faith shall keep us safe till the tempest shall subside. (Copyright 1922, by Edgar A. Guest.)

SALISBURY GIRL CARRIES OFF HIGH SCHOOL HONORS

SOMERSET, Nov. 28.—Miss Alberta Stalter, representing the Salisbury High School, carried off first prize and the cup at the second annual inter-high school reading contest at Somerset. The first prize was $10 in cash. Frederick Will, representing the Garrett High School, was awarded second prize, $5 in cash, and Miss Mary Lou Stalter, representing the Confluence High School, won third prize, $2.50 in cash.

The silver cup will be held by the Salisbury school until next year, when it will be turned over to the next winner of the contest. If Salisbury should win the contest next year, the cup will remain with the school permanently and a new cup will be secured for the future contests. The judges of the contest were Miss Katharine M. Uery, Miss Anna Woodring and Miss Myra B. Swisher, all of the English department of the Johnstown High School.

Ten schools participated in the contest, the schools, representatives and subjects being as follows:

Somerset, Leah Thompson, "The Soul of the Violin"; Berlin, Winifred Buckman, "An Afternoon in a Hotel Room"; Rockwood, Catherine Trexell, "Bugler Bill"; Meyersdale, Sarah Hoffman, "Jack Kelly's Girl"; Cairnbrook, Mildred Huey, "Nathan Hale"; Confluence, Mary Lou Stalter, "The Flood Conservation"; Salisbury, Alberta Stalter, "The Soul of the Violin"; Garrett, Frederick Will, "The Vagabonds"; Somerset Township, Eva Suttell, "The First Settler's Story."

VICTORY FOR YANKEE BLUFF

How Turkish Officials Were Induced to Consent to Establishment of Robert College.

Robert College, near Constantinople, was founded by the munificence of a New York merchant, Christopher Robert, some sixty years ago, to extend and perpetuate the educational work of the American missionary, Dr. Hamlin.

The project did not commend itself to the Turkish authorities. Dr. Hamlin was allowed to purchase a site, but permission to build was refused for nearly twenty years, despite the protests of the United States government.

At last the projectors gained their end by bluff. An American battleship visited Constantinople, and they induced the commander, when dining with some of the chief officers of state, to demand why permission was not granted to erect the college. As anticipated, this was taken as a new hint from the United States, backed by the sending of a warship, and the long-desired permit was received within 24 hours.

Cupid Has Free Hand in Borneo

The man of Borneo believes that the best way to show the lady of his heart that he loves her is by helping her with her daily tasks. After the day's work is done the suitor goes to his own home for supper, but returns to his sweetheart's hut.

On the night that the young woman wishes to ask the young man to become his wife he brings a plentiful supply of sirih-leaf and betel-nut with him, which he gallantly offers her. If she accepts the offering, preparations for the marriage begin immediately. Fowls are killed, rice is boiled, and a feast is served.

But if the young woman does not wish the suitor for a husband, she arises with great dignity and says: "Please blow up the fire!"

The freedom which is given to Cupid is about the only trace of civilization among the natives of Borneo.

Some Definitions

"Two or three" always means at least three, or three and upward. "One or two" seldom if ever means one. "In a minute" means anywhere from five to fifty minutes. "That reminds me of a story" means, "Now, you keep quiet while I tell my joke." "I hold no brief for" means, "I am now going to defend." "While I do not wish to appear critical" means, "But I am going to have my say out, anyhow." "Of course it's no business of mine" means, "I am simply deceived with curiosity." "My conduct calls for no apology and needs no explanation" is the usual introduction for an apology or an explanation. "No one could possibly have mistaken my meaning" is what we say when some one has mistaken it.

Football Then and Now

If you think that football is a rougher game now than in the past, read this paragraph written in 1582: "As concerning football playing, it may be called rather a friendly fight than a play or recreation; a bloody, murdering practice than a fellowly sport or pastime. For doth not every one lie in wait for his adversary, speaking to overthrow him and to pitch him on his nose, though it be upon hard stones; or what place soever it be he careth not, so he have him down. And he that can serve the most in this fashion, he is counted the only fellow, and who but he."

REASON FOR BLINDNESS
A Scotsman and a Jew called on a famous eye specialist. They entered the consulting room together.

"What can I do for you?" inquired the specialist.

"We're going blind," replied the Scotsman, "an we thought ye might be able to help us w' yer skill."

"Going blind?" said the specialist. "How do you account for that?"

"Well," responded the Jew, "this gentleman is my partner, and we've been watching you another"—London Tit-Bits.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrup and more economical. Really and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known, trendy-made cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple, home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get your own drugstore's 20¢ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made anywhere for the same money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

The Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and loosens the most irritable membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "25¢ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept any cheap else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., St. Wayne, Ind.

HIGH COLORS TO BE THE FASHION

Gay Hues Are to Characterize the Modes for Women This Autumn and Winter.

GREAT VARIETY IN SLEEVES

Arm Coverings Often Full Length and Many Styles Offered—Skirts of Various Lengths; Some Have One-Side Drapery.

Modesty in detail, rather than change in form, together with an adoption of extreme novelties in fabrics, a revival of metal and the return to use of high colors, characterize the fashions for autumn and winter 1932-23, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune.

Fashions seem to be moving toward a more strictly type of dress, as many of the designers have gone back to the Renaissance period for the details. Hardly a dressmaker in Paris but shows some leaning toward the extravagances of the period of Francis I, Henry VIII, Henry II and on down to the period of Louis XIII.

Here and there the idea is caught in the sleeve, again one sees it in the collar and in the arrangement of the skirt. Very frequently it is the design in the fabric, again it is the regal coloring, mixtures of gold, silver, steel and copper in fabrics which look as if they had been hammered or wrought in metal and not woven on looms. Impressions of jewels, precious and semi-precious, recall the flourishing art of this sumptuous period.

Exploits, Seventeenth Century Styles. As a variation from the Renaissance there is the note of the pure Venetian styles of the Seventeenth century. Jeanne Lanvin uses this motif, thereby looking persistently to her wide skirt effects. She has little support, however, in this from other dressmakers. A predominance of the slender silhouette, confirms the insignificance of other decorative period styles.

Running through all of the fashions is the Oriental note, the Persian, the Egyptian, the Chinese, the Japanese, whichever in its pure form and again in the cleverly modernized interpretation.

Magnificent embroideries, hand quilting, beading, incrustations, hammered, pressed and printed fabrics all have significant showing. France, from the standpoint of novelty materials and trimmings, is coming back into her own. Not since the several propitious seasons immediately preceding the war has France produced so many wonderful novelties. This elaboration of tissues, whether it be in weave or applied after the work of the loom, will add greatly to the cost of fashionable clothes.

Sleeve Details Vary Silhouette.

Details of sleeves have changed considerably, and it is in this point that the silhouette of 1932-23 will express itself, largely. New sleeves are often full length and may be large at the wrist, elbow or throughout their full length. Long mitten-shaped sleeves are also much used. Many new forms in puffed effects are seen. Sometimes the puff breaks at the elbow; again it is at the wrist. Sometimes a succession of flare ruffles are placed at the elbow or on the wrist of a tight-fitting sleeve.

Many fancy sleeves are seen on evening dresses. Frequently they start from the elbow downward, and they are even attached at the wrist, covering the hands with deep circular frills. All these new sleeve effects are practically taken from the Renaissance period, court dress style. The sleeveless idea still exists, but is not so new as these other more fanciful forms.

The waistline is a variable point, but a big percentage of models continues to be in low waistline style, many of which blouse in the back. There is still every degree of low waistline, from that which starts below the normal waistline to well down to below the turn of the hips, in distinct Egyptian and Oriental form.

One-Side Drapery.

The length of skirts is still variable, but the consensus of opinion is that the skirt skirt will be also to ten inches from the ground. Above dressy afternoon collection will be four to five inches from the ground. Eccentric period styles, both in crinoline and Renaissance effect, often touch and trail. So many of the best makers show such a predominance of the shorter lengths—that is, from nine to ten inches above the floor—that one might expect this to be the smartest length. Other variations will be more or less a personal and individual thing.

Surprising as it may seem, the skirt remains narrow, often extremely nar-

The Most Popular Hostess Owns a Baby Grand

Music has always been considered the most popular form of entertainment by the successful hostess. And it is but natural that her piano should impart a desirable touch of distinction. The exacting hostess owns a Brambach Baby Grand for its ownership not only implies a personal appreciation of the beautiful, but likewise confers upon her the added distinction, both musical and artistic, that would be unattainable with an upright piano. ow. Fullness, when introduced, is unobtrusive, and is usually achieved by means of the circular cut. There is less unevenness about the hem, many of the skirts being straight around.

The one-sided drapery is a strong feature even in the plainest colored dresses and coats; also the one-side fastening and wide, overlapping front. This overlapping one-side effect is also much noted in skirts.

The Three-Piece Suit.

Tailored suits are very pronounced in the showing of both two and three-piece effects. A great majority of the jackets are waist length and in straight, unbelted or slightly belted styles. The exceptions are incidental novelties in very short box bolero styles, Chinese mandarin full-swinging coats and three-quarter length circular-cut effects, the latter usually trimmed with fur.

The three-piece idea is prominent. It expresses itself in two forms—the smart one-piece wool dress with matching jacket or the crepe de chine or satin dress with a wool coat entirely covering it, the lining of which is made of the same material as the dress.

Afternoon dresses are much more elaborate than they were last season. They are often made of beautiful novelty materials; or if they are in plain materials they are richly embroidered, appliqued and beaded. They are in decided contrast to the very simple hand-made crepes which have been so greatly in vogue.

Evening dresses are much less décolleté than in former years. Many of them are made with a slightly rounding or bateau neck. Some of the evening dresses have full-length sleeves and it is only the very ceremonious type that is extremely décolleté and sleeveless.

Draped Evening Dresses.

Considerable moire is used, notably in evening dresses, the moire often having a high luster satin back, making it possible to use in drapery where both sides of the material is allowed to show.

Three-Piece Suit; Dress of Gray Cloth; Jacket of Dark-Red Cloth; Brocaded in Gray.

In crepe weaves marocain continues strong, replacing to no small degree crepe de chine. There is, however, a new quality of silk crepe called crepe mongol which is being used quite extensively. Crepe georgette and crepe romaine are used for beaded dresses, of which there are still a great many. Georgette and sheer crepe romaine are also used in combination.

Many pile fabrics in wools are being shown, notably in thick cord weaves and wafflelike checks, sheared to give a velvet pile surface. These are in solid colors and also in mixtures of two and three tones. A very beautiful line of this character, brought out by Rodier, has a mixture of wool and artificial silk which gives a sort of frosty look.

Rodier often uses a metallic color in the artificial silk which he uses to illuminate the duller woolen threads. In shades of brown and beige he uses flecks of gold and copper-colored silk; in blues and gray he uses silver and steel-tone silk. Thus even these woolens have a metallic glitter.

Connellsville Plays Last Game of Season Thursday Afternoon

Cokers Will Meet Strong Crafton Team in Final Event.

VICTORY MUCH DESIRED

The Connellsville High School football team will close its season Thursday afternoon against the Crafton High School at Fayette field. The game is scheduled for 2:45 o'clock.

The Turkey Day contest is the only one being played in Fayette county on that date and will attract many persons from all points. Uniontown High School finished its season against Monaca Saturday losing to the visitors and grid fans from that place anxious to see all of the sport possible before the lid is finally clamped down, will be here.

The Crafton team may prove an opponent of stronger ability than many Coker followers are wont to believe. The eleven is under the guidance of a member of last season's McKeesport Olympics and has been winning games. The entire squad of 40 men will be brought here this local authorities have been notified.

The Orange and Black team showed some dash against the Dunbar Township outfit Saturday and is in fine shape for the clash Thursday. The boys are both glad and sorry the season is at an end. So far the victories outnumber the defeats, five to four, with one game on the schedule cancelled. If Connellsville wins Thursday, the squad will close the year with a percentage of 600.

Only one game has been lost on the home grounds—the one with Washington—and that one only after the Coker team had been battered down by the strong Washington.

If the show remains until Thursday the grandstand at Fayette field will be a popular place for spectators. There is no extra charge for such seats.

High School has some likely looking backfield material to begin the grid season with next year. Angie, Rusack, George, May and Wilhelm compose a worthy nucleus and there are some freshmen of ability also remaining.

The suggestion of Connellsville taking in a county track meet in the spring is being met with different views by Coker athletes. Some of the boys are anxious to compete, others are not so sure of their ability. There are some fast runners in the school, also some strong boys for other events.

There will be a number of Penn State and Pitt fans attend the annual Thanksgiving Day clash at Pittsburgh on Thursday. Some are fortunate enough to possess seats and many others are going to take a chance on securing standing room.

Ten men in the backfield carried the ball against Dunbar Township last Saturday instead of the usual three. Rusack was seldom used as a ground gainer lacking ability to hold the ball when thrown from contact. He demonstrated he has overcome this habit and at times added as much as 20 yards in his drives through the line. Bob having found himself now, should prove a factor in Thursday's game.

Goloshes will likely be a feature at Fayette field Thursday.

If the playing field is soft it will be for the first time this season. Connellsville players have become used to playing on a granite-like surface however, and it is mainly the visitors that the field bothers. The portion of the grid used as a baseball diamond is the meanest section.

UMPIRE PROTECTS PROPERTY

Purposely Misplaced Play to Prevent One Manager From Tearing Down Stands.

Two semipro ball teams were playing at the Chicago National's park last year, and Pat Piper was doing the announcing. One of the squads got a man to third, and they tried the squeeze play.

The fellow on third failed to run in on the bunt, so the catcher hurried toward first. In some way or other the umpire got in the way and the ball hit him.

After a long argument he decided that the runner go back to third and the batter hit over again.

Later on the umpire asked Pat what he thought of the decision. Piper said he believed it was wrong, that the umpire was a part of the ball game and when the apple hit him the run should have counted.

"Yes, I suppose you're right," replied the official. "But the other manager is a hard guy. If I had decided that way he would have wrecked the ball park. I was merely protecting property."

MANY CHANGES MADE IN BASEBALL RULES

Plenty of changes were brought into baseball during the season of 1880.

In that year eight "called balls" entitled the batter to first base Sunday baseball was prohibited by law. The first professional ball park in New York was opened September 20. And the rule was introduced declaring a baserunner out if hit by a batted ball.

Two years later the number of balls on which a batter was entitled to first base was reduced to seven. Another change was the adoption of the three foot line beside the path to first base.

TENNIS UMPIRES ORGANIZING

Japan is to have a national tennis umpires' association modeled after the one which has functioned so successfully in this country for the last several years. He is already enrolled as a member of the United States Tennis Umpires' association being the first Japanese to hold that distinction. Miho expects to leave here soon for Japan with a national championship cup to be offered for competition by his countrymen. The trophy is the gift of Japanese residents of this country. Miho, according to his close friend and associate Zenzo Shimidzu of last summer's challenging Davis Cup team, is an excellent critic of tennis.

The game between the Ohio State university football team and the University of Michigan eleven at Columbus marked the dedication of the new Ohio stadium. The seating capacity of the stadium is 65,500 and cost, with equipment, nearly $1,500,000. On the day of the dedication it is estimated 15,000 persons witnessed the game, which was won by Michigan.

What I Have Learned in 47 Years Practice

I HAVE been watching the results of constipation for 47 years since I began the practice of medicine back in 1877. I am now 81 years old, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests the fundamentals of causes and relief in this particular ailment are unchanged.

But the people take greater interest today in their health, in diet, exercise and the drinking of water. Constipation, however, will occur from time to time no matter how one tries to avoid it. Of next importance then is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation is known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It is made of Egyptian panna and pepsin with our cubic atomizer. Children will not willingly take bitter things. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not grip. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Over 30 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are now sold every year, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world. I say family laxative because all in the family can use it with safety. It is mild enough for the infant in arms, effective in the most chronic constipation of an adult. The formula is in every package.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics. (Colon) a mineral that salivates and loosens teeth, has been revived and water and powders that draw acrid constituents from the blood, and are disguised in candy form that causes skin eruptions. In a practice of 47 years I have never seen any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently without griping, and without shock to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It lowers your strength 25 per cent, hardens the arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope but go to a druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a generous-size bottle. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will be well. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sore and crummy stomach, piles, indigestion, loss of appetite or sleep, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health. Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

Again they stopped—once more. Connelly, having put his papers into his pocket, dozed, awoke, dozed again. The progress of the train halted again and again; several times it backed, charged forward again—only to stop, back and charge again and then go on. But this did not disturb Connelly. Then something went wrong.

All at once he found himself, by a trainman's instinctive and automatic action, upon his feet, for the shock had been so slight as barely to be felt, far too slight certainly to have awakened any of the sleeping passengers in their berths. He went to the door of the car, lifted the platform step, threw open the door of the vestibule and hanging himself by one hand to the rail, swung himself out from the side of the car and looked ahead. He saw the forward end of the two locomotives wrapped in clouds of steam, and men arm deep in snow wallowing forward to the rotary still farther to the front, and the sight conformed fully to his apprehension that this halt was more important and likely to last much longer than those that had gone before.

CHAPTER IV

Are You Hillward?

The bell in the washroom at the end of the car was ringing violently, and someone was reinforcing his ring with a stentorian call for "Porter! Porter!"

Eaton realized that it was very cold in his berth—also that the train, which was standing still, had been in that motionless condition for some time. He threw up the window curtain as he appreciated that, and, looking out, found that he faced a great unbroken bank of glistening white snow as high as the top of the car at this point and rising even higher ahead. He listened therefore, while the Englishman—for the voice calling to the porter was his—extracted all available information from the negro.

"Porter, where are we?"

"Between Francfort and Simons, suh."

"Yessuh, yit!"

"That foolish snow still?"

"Yessuh, and show some more, yah?"

"But haven't we the plow still ahead?"

"Oh yessuh; the plow's ahead! We still got it; but that's all, suh. It ain't doin' much, it's busted."

"Eh—what?"

"Yessuh—busted! There was right smart of a slide across the track, and the crew, I understands, diagnosed it jus' to a snow bank and done bucked right into it. But they was rock in this, suh, we layin' right below a hill, and that rock jus' busted that rotary like a Belgium shell hit it. Yessuh—pieces of that rotary essentially scattered themselves in four directions besides backwards and forwards. We ain't done much travelin' since then."

Eaton no longer paid attention. "Snowed in and stopped since four!" The realization startled him with the necessity of taking it into account in his plans. He jerked himself up in his berth and began pulling his clothes down from the hooks; then, as abruptly, he stopped dressing and sat absorbed in thought. He had let himself sink back against the pillows, while he stared unseeing, at the soft bank of snow beside the car, when the door at the farther end of the coach opened and Connelly entered, calling a name.

"Mr. Hillward—Mr. Lawrence Hillward! Telegram for Mr. Hillward!"

Eaton started at the first call of the name; he sat up and faced about. The conductor was opposite Section Three; Eaton now waited tensely and delayed until the conductor was past; then putting his head out of his curtains he hailed as the conductor was going through the door.

"What name? Who is that telegram for?"

"Mr. Lawrence Hillward."

"Oh, thank you, that's mine," Connelly held back. "I thought your name was Eaton."

"It is, Mr. Hillward—Lawrence Hillward—is an associate of mine who expected to make this trip with me but could not. So I should have telegrams or other communications addressed to him. Is there anything to sign?"

"No, sir—train delivery."

Eaton drew his curtains close again and ripped the envelope open, but before reading the message he observed with alarm that his pajama jacket had opened across the chest, and a small round scar, such as that left by a high-powered bullet penetrating, was exposed. He gasped almost audibly, realizing this, and clapped his hand to his chest and buttoned his jacket. The message—nine words without signature—lay before him:

"Thicket knot youngster omniscient have foliage lecture tragic instigation."

It was some code which Eaton recognized but could not decipher at once. The conductor was still standing.

"What did you get this?" Eaton asked, looking out.

"Just now. That message came through yesterday some time and was waiting for you at Simons; when we got there this morning they sent it on."

"I see; thanks," Eaton assured that if the conductor had seen anything he supposed no attention was paid to it.

"Eh—what?"

"Yessuh—busted! There was right smart of a slide across the track, and the crew, I understands, diagnosed it jus' to a snow bank and done bucked right into it. But they was rock in this, suh, we layin' right below a hill, and that rock jus' busted that rotary like a Belgium shell hit it. Yessuh—pieces of that rotary essentially scattered themselves in four directions besides backwards and forwards. We ain't done much travelin' since then."

Eaton no longer paid attention. "Snowed in and stopped since four!" The realization startled him with the necessity of taking it into account in his plans. He jerked himself up in his berth and began pulling his clothes down from the hooks; then, as abruptly, he stopped dressing and sat absorbed in thought. He had let himself sink back against the pillows, while he stared unseeing, at the soft bank of snow beside the car, when the door at the farther end of the coach opened and Connelly entered, calling a name.

"Mr. Hillward—Mr. Lawrence Hillward! Telegram for Mr. Hillward!"

Eaton started at the first call of the name; he sat up and faced about. The conductor was opposite Section Three; Eaton now waited tensely and delayed until the conductor was past; then putting his head out of his curtains he hailed as the conductor was going through the door.

"What name? Who is that telegram for?"

"Mr. Lawrence Hillward."

"Oh, thank you, that's mine," Connelly held back. "I thought your name was Eaton."

Eaton drew his curtains close again and ripped the envelope open, but before reading the message he observed with alarm that his pajama jacket had opened across the chest, and a small round scar, such as that left by a high-powered bullet penetrating, was exposed. He gasped almost audibly, realizing this, and clapped his hand to his chest and buttoned his jacket. The message—nine words without signature—lay before him:

"Thicket knot youngster omniscient have foliage lecture tragic instigation."

It was some code which Eaton recognized but could not decipher at once. The conductor was still standing.

"What did you get this?" Eaton asked, looking out.

"Just now. That message came through yesterday some time and was waiting for you at Simons; when we got there this morning they sent it on."

"I see; thanks," Eaton assured that if the conductor had seen anything he supposed no attention was paid to it.

Connelly, having put his papers into his pocket, dozed, awoke, dozed again. The progress of the train halted again and again; several times it backed, charged forward again—only to stop, back and charge again and then go on. But this did not disturb Connelly. Then something went wrong.

All at once he found himself, by a trainman's instinctive and automatic action, upon his feet, for the shock had been so slight as barely to be felt, far too slight certainly to have awakened any of the sleeping passengers in their berths. He went to the door of the car, lifted the platform step, threw open the door of the vestibule and hanging himself by one hand to the rail, swung himself out from the side of the car and looked ahead. He saw the forward end of the two locomotives wrapped in clouds of steam, and men arm deep in snow wallowing forward to the rotary still farther to the front, and the sight conformed fully to his apprehension that this halt was more important and likely to last much longer than those that had gone before.

CHAPTER IV

Are You Hillward?

The bell in the washroom at the end of the car was ringing violently, and someone was reinforcing his ring with a stentorian call for "Porter! Porter!"

Eaton realized that it was very cold in his berth—also that the train, which was standing still, had been in that motionless condition for some time. He threw up the window curtain as he appreciated that, and, looking out, found that he faced a great unbroken bank of glistening white snow as high as the top of the car at this point and rising even higher ahead. He listened therefore, while the Englishman—for the voice calling to the porter was his—extracted all available information from the negro.

"Porter, where are we?"

"Between Francfort and Simons, suh."

"Yessuh, yit!"

"That foolish snow still?"

"Yessuh, and show some more, yah?"

"But haven't we the plow still ahead?"

"Oh yessuh; the plow's ahead! We still got it; but that's all, suh. It ain't doin' much, it's busted."

"Eh—what?"

"Yessuh—busted! There was right smart of a slide across the track, and the crew, I understands, diagnosed it jus' to a snow bank and done bucked right into it. But they was rock in this, suh, we layin' right below a hill, and that rock jus' busted that rotary like a Belgium shell hit it. ## WORN OUT AFTER SHE COOKED A MEAL

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—
Read the Result

Cincinnati, Ohio—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, and neglected it awhile, but found I could not do my work until I was stronger. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and now I am the mother of a four-year-old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if I had not been for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend your medicine to all women although I am young to be advising such an older."—Mrs. CARLIS, Pittsford, 318 W. Liberty St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by any woman.

One of the unique cities of the world is the city of Brunei, a couple of miles up the river of that name on the island of Borneo, known as the Venice of the East to dwellers of that land but known not at all to the outside world.

It is built entirely on piles placed over the river, and stretches for a couple of miles on each side of the river. It is really a lot of little towns in one with a population of 10,000 mostly Malays.

LAUREL HILL CHURCH WILL CLOSE DOORS

Was Founded 131 Years Ago; Cemetery Goes to Lot Holders.

After having been in existence since 1791, the Laurel Hill United Presbyterian Church in Dunbar township, has ceased to function and is about to dissolve. Its congregation having dwindled to negligible proportions. A petition to turn the church cemetery over to a corporation to hold for the exclusive membership and their families during the next 15 years has been confirmed by court and remnants of the congregation are dividing their allegiance between the Conneltsville Presbyterian Church and the Laurel Hill Presbyterian Church.

The history of this church one of the oldest of those founded west of the Allegheny mountains is an interesting one. Originally its members were admitted with the Laurel Hill Presbyterian Church and all worshiped under one roof. A schism in the church councils appeared however and many of the early settlers elected to join the faith of the United Presbyterians.

Newer generations have forgotten the early differences and the present Laurel Hill Presbyterian Church located a quarter of a mile away able with a growing congregation to support its own pastor is attracting to its fold the flock which formerly worshipped under one roof.

Under the terms of the dissolution, the cemetery of the United Church is turned over to a corporation which agrees to bury without charge for the next 15 years the members of the old church or their kin either by blood or marriage. The corporation also receive the sum of $5,000 for the upkeep of the grounds. The trustees of the old church include Hugh Rankin, T. Scott Dunn and Samuel P. Junk. The court has confirmed the dissolution petition presented by Attorney John L. Robinson.

"I Have Other Fish to Fry" is a novel phraseology of the thought that one has other things to do besides the one proposed by the questioner. It was uttered by the Mad Knight Don Quixote—immortal hero of the novel by that name, which had for its purpose the ridiculing of knight errantry and the glorious days of chivalry.

Cervantes makes his hero read romance and adventure into everything he sees during his journey through the present countryside and as a result some painful experiences befall the knight. Don Quixote's memorable tilt with windmills is a classic story of literature, and the naive way he explains after the unfortunate tilt that they were knights when he attacked them, but that an evil influence converted them into windmills to avert defeat and humiliate him is laughable to the last degree.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"MOLLY O," showing today and tomorrow at this theatre is the personification of optimism. Its heroine is so full of pep that there wasn't any actress in the world, it is claimed that could play the part except Mabel Normand, who came back to the Mack Sennett regime a grateful liner more brilliant and winsome star than ever. The story of Molly O is primarily strong comedy but it has a tense dramatic background and many of the incidents in the development of the plot are sufficiently thrilling so that it might safely be classed as a melodrama.

The production is the most expensive one which Mr. Sennett has ever made but despite its great cost there was nothing wasted in it. The locale of the story runs from the slums of a great city to the grand ball room in the most fashionable hotel in the same city and the actual requirements to cover the story resulted in the building of many lavish and exclusive sets.

"Good Men and True" starring Harry Carey will be the attraction on Thanksgiving and will also be shown Friday and Saturday.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"YOU NEVER KNOW" the leading attraction today at this theatre presents Darle Williams in the stellar role. There is always something up, romantic and appealing in photographs and stories woven around the intrigues and revolutions of South American republics. It is such a theme that furnished Mr. Williams a delightful vehicle in which to shine. The picture was entitled "You Never Know" and in truth one seldom did know just what might be expected next. That the hero was not what he appeared was self evident from the start otherwise he would not have been the hero. The question resolved itself into the interrogative "Who was he?" You are tempted to follow it with "What was he doing and how did he expect to accomplish it?" if you could stay your attention from the screen long enough to think that far. The interest is centered around a mysterious individual who is apparently as poor as the proverbial church mouse and yet who is able to move in the best of society. The man cares little about work. He appears more interested in a young girl whose father is plotting for a revolution in a South American republic. The youngster furnishes half the humor and general of the exciting scenes in the picture.

Wednesday and Thursday Marguerite Snow will appear in "The Veiled Woman."

THE ORPHEUM.

"HER HUSBAND'S TRADEMARK" in which Gloria Swanson has fully established the claim of being one of the best dressed women on the screen provides splendid entertainment today and tomorrow at this theatre. Audiences at this theatre have learned with satisfaction just what constitutes Her Husband's Trademark. In this case the husband's trademark is a gorgeously dressed wife. The husband is not wealthy but hopes to attain wealth by making a show of wealth. The plot thickens when a friend of husband and wife returns after gaining both wealth and greatness falls in love with the wife and the husband, to promote his selfish financial aims rather encourages the romance. The outgrowth of this situation is a powerful climax showing the disillusionment and after a thrilling encounter with bandits in old Mexico the scene of the friends of old lands the death of the cowardly husband and the triumph of righteous love. Stuart Holmes plays the husband with all his old-time finesse as a suave villain. Richard Wayne portrays the friend and the other roles are in the hands of Lucien Littlefield, Clarence Burton and Charles Ogles.

The Thanksgiving attraction will be "A Game Chicken" featuring Bebe Daniels.
